

ACIM – related qualifications of Val Scott and Noel McInnis.

Val Scott's relationships with key members of the ACIM community.

Val Scott has been a committed student of ACIM since 1979, as well as an ongoing associate of the leaders of the ACIM movement, including Judith Skutch Whitson (Foundation for Inner Peace), Ken Wapnick (Foundation for a Course in Miracles), Robert Perry (The Circle of Atonement) and Chuck Anderson (Endeavor Academy). He has for 18 years performed a consistent conciliatory role in the dispute over the ACIM copyright issue and other related healing matters with respect to the ACIM community.

Judith Skutch Whitson introduced Val to ACIM at Princeton University in 1979; welcomed him into her home in California on several occasions; introduced him to other ACIM leaders (including Ken Wapnick, Jerry Jampolsky, Bill Thetford); and supported him in establishing the Course-based organization, Inner Peace Unlimited, which became the principal distributor of ACIM in Canada.

Ken Wapnick was Val's first Course teacher, a relationship that developed into an ongoing personal friendship, to the extent that Ken and his wife, Gloria, served as best man and maid of honor at Val's wedding.

Robert Perry has been the second foremost influence in Val's development as an ACIM student, and also assisted Val in the establishment of Inner Peace Unlimited.

Chuck Anderson became Val's associate when Val was a resident of the Endeavor Academy during the first nine months of its existence in 1993. Val continues to communicate with members of the Academy community.

Noel McInnis's relationship to ACIM.

Rev. Noel McInnis, an ordained minister of Religious Science, first taught ACIM in 1984, has incorporated its principles in his ministry at the Church of Forgiveness in San Carlos, CA, and is adept at employing its principles as a facilitator of conflict resolution.
