The list below reflects data from the 2001 edition of Guide to U.S. Foundations: Their Trustees, Officers and Donors, a comprehensive listing of all private and community foundations in the United States (GUSF) & from the Fall 2001 Grantsmanship Center magazine, issue 45 (TGCI).

Alabama Foundation Directory

Birmingham Public Library, Attention: Government Documents, 2100 Park Place, Birmingham, AL 35203. Tel.: (205) 226-3620.

GUSF Based primarily on the 990-PF returns of 436 foundations operating in Alabama.

TGCI The latest edition (1996) contains information gleaned primarily from 990-PF returns of 436 foundations operating in Alabama. According to Rebecca Scarborough, head of the government documents department at the Birmingham Public Library, publisher of the directory, a new edition is planned but no publication date has yet been set. In the meantime, Scarborough advises local grantseekers to check more current resources available at the Birmingham Public Library (or other Foundation Center cooperating collections in the state: Huntsville Public Library, University of South Alabama in Mobile, Auburn University at Montgomery Library). "We hate to promote things when they're so old," she said, "and we don't have many left to send."

GUSF Contains entries for foundations and corporations that are located, or fund projects in, the state of Alaska. Also available in CD-ROM format from Funding Exchange. See also WASHINGTON, Philanthropy Northwest Member Directory.

TGCI The 8th Edition (2001) contains basic information about 149 foundations, corporations, and other funding sources (e.g., fraternal orders and church-based organizations) that are located in Alaska, or that have a declared interest in supporting groups and/or individuals located in Alaska. Ellen Maling, Director of the funding Exchange, Inc., publisher of the Guide, states that all funders listed in the directory "have been screened to ensure that they will make donations to Alaska nonprofit organizations." besides contact information, there are fields for eligibility, areas of interest, and application procedures. No data is provided regarding specific grants or past recipients.

1999-2000 Arizona Guide to Giving. 5th ed.

Arizona Human Services, P.O. Box 5456, Glendale, AZ 85312. Tel.: (623) 412-8650; FAX:(623) 412-8776.

GUSF Profiles of more than 800 corporations and foundations with a history of making grants in Arizona. Also available in electronic format.

TGCI The 7th Edition (2001-2002) contains over 1,000 listings of corporations and foundations with a history of making grants in Arizona. Contact information, priorities, application guidelines and similar information are provided for each funder. A web version offers access to data on all funders in the database, which is searchable in nine areas of grantmaker interest (art, civic, education, environment, health, international, religion, science, social services) as well as 11 "target group" categories (child, youth, family, elderly, minority, women, men, low-income, working poor, urban, rural). Much of this information has been supplied by the grantmakers themselves in response to a questionnaire. Concise annotations help specify the funder's priorities for each area of interest and/or population group. Keyword searches can also be done for grants activity in a particular county or community; for specialized topics (e.g., literacy, dance, museums); or for specific grantees. However, since the database includes only selected "grant examples" rather than the entire inventory of grants made by each funder, the effectiveness of these grant searches may be limited. According to Marilyn Boess, editor of the Guide, information on the Web is continuously updated.

Arkansas Funding Directory, 2001 ed.

- TGCI The 1st edition (2001) contains detailed profiles of 220 California-based foundations, mostly large grantmakers but including some that are smaller and give only to pre-selected recipients. (Foundations located outside California are not profiled in the book, even if they make substantial grants in the state.) Contact information, financial data, giving restrictions, geographic focus, etc. Have been drawn from the most recent 990-PF forms available. About one-third of the listings were updated or verified by foundation representatives. The author, Ford T. Pearson, says that he attempted to cover the largest California Foundations, but omitted a few because he "was unable to get 990 tax records for every foundation I was interested in profiling." These omissions are a drawback. What distinguishes the directory is that it lists all grants made by a foundation during the most recent fiscal year (including information about the amount of the grant, the recipient, and the purpose). For the serious grantseeker who wants a full picture of a particular foundation's giving pattern, such a complete grants list is substantially more useful than the short lists of arbitrarily selected "sample grants" or "representative grants" that appear in most directories.

The list below reflects data from the 2001 edition of Guide to U.S. Foundations: Their Trustees, Officers and Donors, a comprehensive listing of all private and community foundations in the United States (GUSF) & from the Fall 2001 Grantsmanship Center magazine, issue 45 (TGCI).

Colorado Grant Guide, 2001-2002		Book, $135.00 • On-line/annual, $200.00
Community Resource Center, 655 Broadway, Suite 300, Denver, CO 80203-3426. Tel.: (303) 623-1540.		www.crcamerica.org
GUSF	Foundations, corporate givers, government and religious agencies within the state and outside the state with an interest in Colorado.
TGCI	The 6th edition (2001-2002) contains entries in five categories: (1) Colorado foundations and trusts, identified from directories and online publications produced by the Foundation Center. Financial and other data was gleaned from the foundations' most recent IRS form 990-PF, as well as from the foundations' own Web sites. (Sample profiles were sent to the foundations for corrections and approval.) The list includes Denver-based foundations that give more than $50,000 annually; foundations from outside the Denver metropolitan area that give more than $10,000 annually; and other Colorado-based foundations that might be of particular interest to groups in a specific field or region. Not included were operating foundations, foundations that only fund scholarships, and foundations that give only to preselected organizations. (2) National foundations that currently support nonprofits in Colorado. (3) Corporate giving programs and corporate foundations that actively support nonprofits in Colorado. (4) State of Colorado government agencies that fund nonprofits (identified through program listings at the state's Web site and amplified by contacting the agencies to obtain corrections and updates). (5) Religious institutions that support nonprofits in Colorado (identified through the Religious Funding Resource Guide and amplified by contacting the funders for corrections and updates). In most cases, funder profiles include a sampling of "representative" grants, as well as descriptions of the funder's primary and secondary areas of interest and types of grant proposals considered. Indexes are designed to help a user pinpoint funders' areas of interest, geographic focus, and proposal deadlines. An online version provides for keyword searches and periodic information updates.
1999 Guide to Connecticut Grantmakers		Book+CD-ROM, $75.00
Connecticut Council for Philanthropy, 221 Main Street, Hartford, CT 06106. Tel.: (860) 525-5585.		www.Ctphilanthropy.org
GUSF	Profiles on 1,600 foundations, corporate giving programs, and charitable trusts located or giving in Connecticut. Also available in CD-ROM format.
TGCI	The 1st edition (1999) contains information on 1,438 grantmaking entities located in Connecticut or that have targeted giving programs in the state. The main section of the book includes data on 607 foundations and corporate giving programs that have assets over $500,000 and make total annual grants of more than $25,000. There are separate sections for grantmakers "less likely to be included in most organizations' fundraising programs"—those with assets of less than $500,000 and/or total annual grants of less than $25,000, those that provide only designated scholarships, and those that do not accept unsolicited proposals. Information was gathered using 990-PF forms on file with the Connecticut Attorney General's office; foundation annual reports; and questionnaires returned by the grantmakers. Those funders that completed the questionnaires, prepared by the Connecticut Council on Philanthropy (the state's regional association of grantmakers), have the most detailed listings.. The directory also contains seven indices: areas of interest(e.g., education, human services, arts and culture); types of support for organizations (e.g., general purpose or program development); types of support for individuals (e.g., for needy persons or fellowships); target populations; geographic locations; officers, trustees and staff; and grantmakers by name (alphabetical listing). The introductory section of the book, which includes information about researching grantmakers and writing proposals, is succinct, clearly presented, and helpful. The book version of the Guide will not be reprinted since its contents will become available at the Web site of the Connecticut Council for Philanthropy. A CD-ROM, released in March, 2001, contains a searchable database of most of the information in the Guide. (It excludes grantmakers that accept only solicited proposals; only fund out of state; give only to legally designated recipients; or are inactive.)
Directory of Delaware Grantmakers, 1998		Book, $25.00
Delaware Community Foundation, P.O. Box 1636, Wilmington DE 19899-1636. Tel.: (302) 571-8004.		www.delcf.org
GUSF	Lists more than 450 grantmaking organizations in Delaware with detailed information on 65 foundations and corporations.
TGCI	The 1998 edition profiles 65 Delaware foundations and corporate giving programs that responded to the editor's survey. (Approximately 450 grantmakers were contacted; only those that completed the questionnaire have detailed listings in the Directory.) Entries for these funders are usually ample, with information about each grantmaker's areas of interest, types of support, and application guidelines/procedures. In the case of funders that did not complete a questionnaire, only a mailing address and phone number are provided. These shorter listings include a mix of national foundations, foundations based in Delaware but without a Delaware focus, unstaffed family foundations, and others that simply failed to respond.

Names of officers are listed, but the names of contacts or key staff are supplied only occasionally (in the "Comments" section of a listing). The list below reflects data from the 2001 edition of Guide to U.S. Foundations: Their Trustees, Officers and Donors, a comprehensive listing of all private and community foundations in the United States (GUSF) & from the Fall 2001 Grantsmanship Center magazine, issue 45 (TGCI).

Directory of Illinois Foundations, 6th ed.

GUSF Alphabetically arranged directory provides information on 2,200 foundations and corporate giving programs in Illinois. Available in print and CD-ROM formats from the Donors Forum of Chicago, 208 South La Salle, Suite 740, Chicago, IL 60604-1006. Tel.: (312) 578-0103.

TGCI One of the best organized and most thorough of the state funding guides, the 6th edition (2000-2002) of this biannual directory is divided into five sections: (1) detailed profiles of 465 Illinois foundations with annual grantmaking of at least $50,000; (2) detailed profiles of 29 Illinois corporations that have active corporate giving programs; (3) short profiles of 1,320 Illinois foundations that have annual grantmaking of less than $50,000, or that award grants only to preselected recipients, or that do not accept unsolicited proposals; (4) name and address listings for 413 new organizations that registered as foundations with the Illinois Attorney General's Office, but had yet to file a 990-PF; and (5) a series of indices by staff/trustee name, location type of foundation, targeted population groups, etc. The more extensive profiles were written using information collected from a survey sent to grantmakers. All other entries were produced using data from the latest available 990-PF form or from other records on file with the Illinois Attorney General's office. Data fields include contact information, funding exclusions, geographic focus, types of eligible support, application deadlines, application procedures (including preferred method of initial contact), paid staff, and in the case of corporate giving programs—whether they have matching gift programs, in-kind gifts, employee volunteer programs, etc.

Book, $95.00

Attorney General's Office, 200 St. Paul Place, Baltimore, MD 21202. Attn: Denise Manuli. Tel.: (410) 576-6491.

GUSF Information on more than 500 foundations compiled from 1999 IRS 990-PF forms filed with the Maryland Attorney General's Office.

TGCI An alphabetical listing of Maryland-based foundations, containing data extracted from IRS 990-PFs filed with the Maryland Attorney General's office. Information includes: foundation name, address, telephone number, and EIN; fair market value of foundation's assets; names of foundation managers with their titles and addresses; application information; grants paid out in the last fiscal year and names of recipients; total contributions paid out during the fiscal year; grants approved for future payment, with recipient name and amount; total amount of grants approved for future payment. Larger foundations with extensive lists of grantees appear in a series of appendices; in several cases, these lists run for a dozen or more pages—especially when corporations are reporting hundreds of matching gifts (e.g., the St. Paul Companies Maryland Foundation, Lockheed Martin Corporation Foundation and GEICO Philanthropic Foundation). The supplemental index is compiled in April; it contains information from foundations that have submitted their 990-PF form to the Attorney General's office after the December deadline. The supplemented index is forwarded free of charge to those who have purchased the primary index earlier in the year.

GUSF Contains profiles on foundations, corporations, and nonprofit organizations that make grants for community needs in Maryland.

TGCI The 2001-2002 edition profiles foundations, corporations, and other grantmakers that support Maryland nonprofits. The book is divided into five sections: funders that accept unsolicited proposals or issue RFPs; funders that award less than $20,000 annually; funders that do not accept unsolicited proposals; and individual donors.

Massachusetts Grantmakers Directory, 1999-2000 ed.

GUSF Contains descriptions of 500 funders in Massachusetts. Also available as an online subscription. Available from Associated Grantmakers of Massachusetts, 294 Washington St., Boston, MA 02108. Tel.: (617) 426-2606.

TGCI The 1999-2000 edition contains descriptions of 500 funders in Massachusetts, including foundations, corporate giving programs, and a few church-sponsored giving programs and funder collaboratives. Data is derived primarily from funder's responses to a questionnaire distributed by AGM, and includes contact information, application procedures, financial information, "grantmaking philosophy/program emphasis." entries are indexed according to geographic focus, headquarters, and areas of funding interest. The introductory "User's Guide" and "Guide to Good Grantsmanship" are useful enhancements. The directory database, updated and expanded, is accessible online to AGM partners.

Office of Research Services, University of New Mexico, Scholes Hall, Room 102, Albuquerque, NM 87131. Tel.: (505) 277-2256.

www.unm.edu/~ors/databases/

GUSF Contains information on more than 300 funding sources located in New Mexico as well as out-of-state funding sources that focus on New Mexico and the southwest including private, community and corporate foundations; state government grant programs; associations and organizations; corporate direct-giving programs; and competitive award programs at the University of New Mexico.

TGCI A special project of the Office of Research Services at the University Of New Mexico, the directory is primarily targeted at university faculty, staff and graduate students who have a need for the state compilation of funding sources. Local nonprofits may also find it useful. The 5th edition (1998) contains information on 311 funding sources, either located in New Mexico or focusing their giving in the state. Of these, 26 are state agencies and 62 are divisions, departments or competitive award programs at the university. The remainder consist of foundations, corporate giving programs, federal agencies (e.g., the U.S. Geological Service) and civic or religious groups. In the case of foundations, information about specific recipients of a few "sample grants" is included—selected from the foundation's 990-PF or annual report; comparable grant data is not provided in the case of other funders. The database is searchable at the Office of Research Services' Web site. [Use of Midas is restricted to the UNM community. In order to use Midas, you must be accessing from a machine that is connected to UNM or that you have dialed up UNM or New Mexico Technet/Oso Grande and logged in with your UNIX account information.]

The list below reflects data from the 2001 edition of Guide to U.S. Foundations: Their Trustees, Officers and Donors, a comprehensive listing of all private and community foundations in the United States (GUSF) & from the Fall 2001 Grantsmanship Center magazine, issue 45 (TGCI).

The Directory of Virginia Foundations: 2001 ed.

GUSF Provides entries for 992 foundations based in Virginia. Also available in CD-ROM or diskette from the Grants Connection, 2318 Page Court, Virginia Beach, VA 23451-1150. Tel.: (800) 532-7934.

TGCI

Charitable Trust Directory, 1999-2000

Office of the Secretary of the State, Charities Program, P.O. Box 40234, Olympia, WA 98504-0234. Tel.: (360) 753-0863.

Book, $20.00

GUSF Based on the records of the more than 900 charitable trusts reporting to the Secretary of State.

TGCI The 1999 edition contains basic data about approximately 900 charitable trusts (not all of them grantmakers) that have filed reports with the Washington Secretary of State. For most of the trusts listed, there is some information about its purpose, assets, distributions, geographic focus, and application procedures.

Philanthropy Northwest Member Directory, 2000, 5th ed.

Book, $86.00 • On-line/annual, $119.75

www.PhilanthropyNE.org

Philanthropy Northwest, 2815 Second Avenue, Suite 290, Seattle, WA 98121. Tel.: (206) 770-9423.

GUSF Profiles 143 grantmaking organizations that are members of Philanthropy Northwest. Their members fund programs in the states of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, and/or Alaska. Also available as an online subscription.

TGCI The 5th edition (2000) contains profiles of 143 grantmaking organizations in the states of Washington, Alaska, Idaho, Montana and Oregon that are members of Philanthropy Northwest, a regional association of grantmakers (known formerly as the Pacific Northwest Grantmakers Forum). Some members of the association are not included because they offer only minimal funding or they do not accept unsolicited proposals. Profiles include information about the grantmaker's principal funding interests, geographic focus, types of support, eligibility/limitations, financial data, application procedures, etc. The graphic presentation (including charts for types of support that have boxes indicating "yes," "no," and "maybe") is more effective than in most directories, making for a clear snapshot of each subject. Since most of the data is supplied by the members themselves, it is more accurate—especially with respect to application guidelines and types of support offered—than the kind of information gleaned from 990s or secondary sources. The book is indexed by funding area (percentage of funding in major areas) and subject listing.

GUSF Profiles of 227 Washington-based foundations and information on all their recent grants.

TGCI The 2nd edition (2000) contains detailed profiles of 227 Washington-based foundations. (Foundations located outside Washington are not included, even if they make substantial grants in the state.) Contact information, financial data, giving restrictions, geographic focus, etc. have been drawn from the most recent 990-PF forms available. Some of the entries have been updated or verified by foundation representatives. Profiles include a list of all grants made by the foundation during the most recent fiscal year (including the amount of the grant, the recipient, and the purpose). The funder's categorical priorities are illustrated with graphic bar charts that show total grant dollars by subject and grantee city.

West Virginia Foundation Directory, 2nd ed.

Kanawha County Public Library, Administrative Office, 123 Capitol St., Charleston, WV 25301. Tel.: (304) 343-4646.

GUSF Profiles of foundations derived from survey data and IRS 990-PF reports.

TGCI The 2nd edition (1995) contains descriptive entries for most West Virginia foundations, using information derived from 990-PF forms and some survey data. According to Elizabeth Fraser, editor of the directory, copies are no longer for sale because the information may be outdated. At present, there are no plans to have it revised or reissued. The directory, and a funding locator worksheet, can be inspected at the Kanawha County Public Library.

Wyoming Foundations Directory. 7th ed.

Book, $5.00

Laramie County Community College Library, 1400 E. College Dr., Cheyenne, WY 82007-3299.
Tel.: (307) 778-1206.

GUSF Profiles Wyoming foundations and out-of-state funders with an interest in Wyoming.

TGCI Describing itself as "primarily a guide to public and private foundations with interest in the state of Wyoming," the seventh edition (1999) contains information drawn from 990-PF forms, mail and telephone contacts with foundation representatives, and the Foundation Center's FC Search database. Listings are broken down into two sections: grantmakers based in Wyoming (approximately 140) and out-of-state foundations that designate Wyoming as an area of focus for giving (approximately 170). Foundations that have specifically identified themselves as "charitable testamentary trusts," with governing documents that stipulate particular grantees as their sole beneficiaries, have been omitted. (But other foundations that do not accept unsolicited applications may be included.) Entries generally provide contact information; application deadlines and procedures; names of officers and directors; areas of interest; and sample grants. At a minimum, contact information and some suggestions as to area of interest are provided.
